Dear Mom

I just got back from a three day pass in London. Boy what a girl I met down there. She beats anything I've met here in England and most I met in the States as Bobbie says (chick chick).

I was standing out in front of our hotel watching the British anti aircraft guns firing at a German sander the other night. When a piece of shrapnel went ~~to~~ through a window of the next building. I was thinking it would be ironic if I should get hit by English flak after all the millions of rounds the Germans have wasted on me. It was fun watching someone else getting hell for a change though.

The box of candy was waiting for me after when I got back, it got here in good shape.
Before I run out of paper. I'm now in 2001.
Love, A
